In his autobiography, The Rock Says..., Dwayne Johnson credits his mother, Ata Johnson, and his high school football coach, Jody Cwik, as two of the most influential people in his life. But there is another person who played a major role in shaping Johnson's success: Jeanie Johnson.

Jeanie Johnson was Johnson's strength and conditioning coach at the University of Miami. She was the one who taught him the "Why Not?" mentality that has become synonymous with his career.

In this book, Johnson tells the story of how Jeanie Johnson helped him overcome adversity and achieve his dreams. He shares the lessons he learned from her about hard work, perseverance, and the importance of believing in yourself.

The Power of the "Why Not?" Mentality

The "Why Not?" mentality is a simple but powerful concept. It is the belief that you can achieve anything you set your mind to, no matter how difficult it may seem. It is the belief that there is no such thing as failure, only opportunities to learn and grow.

Jeanie Johnson taught Dwayne Johnson the "Why Not?" mentality early in his career. She told him that he could be anything he wanted to be, and that he should never let anyone tell him otherwise.

Johnson took her words to heart. He went on to become one of the most successful actors, wrestlers, and businessmen in the world. He has also used his platform to inspire millions of people around the world.

The Lessons of Jeanie Johnson
