- Acrylics: Acrylics are a water-based paint that is known for its quick drying time and versatility. They can be used to create a wide range of effects, from thin washes to impasto brushstrokes.
- Oils: Oils are a slow-drying paint that is known for its rich, vibrant colors and smooth, buttery texture. They are ideal for creating detailed, realistic paintings.
- Watercolors: Watercolors are a transparent paint that is made with pigments suspended in water. They are known for their light, airy quality and their ability to create soft, ethereal effects.
- Mixed media: Mixed media paintings combine two or more different mediums to create unique and interesting effects. For example, you could mix acrylics with oils to create a painting with both the quick drying time of acrylics and the rich colors of oils.
