For centuries, Western historiography has dominated our understanding of global history. But what if we were to shift our perspective and examine the world through the lens of Chinese civilization? In his groundbreaking book, Global History With Chinese Characteristics, Professor Wang Gungwu challenges the traditional Eurocentric narrative and presents a compelling case for a more inclusive and accurate account of our shared past.

Drawing upon a wealth of historical evidence and in-depth research, Professor Wang traces the profound influence of Chinese civilization on global affairs from ancient times to the present day. He argues that China has played a pivotal role in shaping the development of trade, technology, culture, and diplomacy throughout the world.

Unraveling the Silk Road's True Significance

One of the most fascinating aspects of Global History With Chinese Characteristics is its exploration of the Silk Road's true significance. Far from being a mere conduit for trade, the Silk Road was a vibrant network of cultural exchange and technological innovation. Professor Wang demonstrates how Chinese inventions, such as papermaking and gunpowder, made their way westward, while Buddhism and other Eastern philosophies spread eastward.
