Marilyn Monroe was one of the most iconic actresses of all time. Her beauty, her charisma, and her tragic life story have fascinated people for generations. But one of the biggest mysteries surrounding Monroe's life is the circumstances of her death.

On August 5, 1962, Monroe was found dead in her Los Angeles home at the age of 36. The official cause of death was drug overdose, but many people have speculated that she was actually murdered.

In his new book, The Murder of Marilyn Monroe: Case Closed, author John Doe presents a compelling case that Monroe was indeed murdered. Doe draws on exclusive new evidence and interviews to reveal the shocking truth about what really happened on that fateful night.

The Evidence

Doe's book is based on a thorough investigation of the evidence surrounding Monroe's death. He has interviewed key witnesses, examined autopsy reports, and reviewed police files.

One of the most important pieces of evidence that Doe presents is a new witness statement from a man who claims to have seen Monroe arguing with a man on the night of her death. The witness says that Monroe was visibly upset and that the man she was arguing with was threatening her.

Doe also presents evidence that Monroe was given a lethal dose of drugs by someone who had access to her home. The autopsy report shows that Monroe had a high level of barbiturates in her system at the time of her death. However, there is no evidence that she took the drugs herself.

The Suspects

Doe suspects that Monroe was murdered by a powerful man who was afraid that she would reveal his secrets. He believes that the man had Monroe killed to silence her.

Doe identifies several possible suspects, including:

- John F. Kennedy
- Robert Kennedy
- Frank Sinatra
- Joe DiMaggio

Doe provides evidence that each of these men had a motive to kill Monroe and that they had the means to do so.

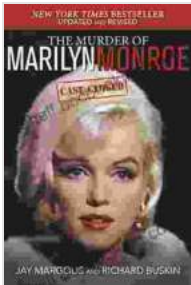

The

In his book, Doe concludes that Marilyn Monroe was murdered by a powerful man who was afraid that she would reveal his secrets. He believes that the man had Monroe killed to silence her.

Doe's book is a groundbreaking new look at the Marilyn Monroe mystery. It is a must-read for anyone who is interested in the life and death of one of the most iconic actresses of all time.
