Hurricane Maria was a Category 5 hurricane that devastated Puerto Rico in September 2017. The storm caused widespread damage and left millions of people without power.

In the aftermath of the storm, eight Puerto Ricans shared their stories of survival, resilience, and hope.

"I Lost Everything, But I Found My Strength"

Maria was a single mother of two when Hurricane Maria hit. Her home was destroyed, and she lost everything she owned. But she didn't give up. She found shelter in a nearby community center and began to rebuild her life.

"I lost everything, but I found my strength," Maria said. "I'm not going to let this storm define me. I'm going to come back stronger than ever."

"We Are Puerto Rico, and We Will Rise Again"

Juan was a community leader in Puerto Rico. He saw firsthand the devastation that Hurricane Maria caused, but he never lost hope.

"We are Puerto Rico, and we will rise again," Juan said. "We are a strong people, and we will overcome this challenge."

"The Storm Didn't Break Us"

Sofia was a nurse who worked tirelessly in the aftermath of Hurricane Maria. She saw the pain and suffering that the storm caused, but she also saw the resilience of the Puerto Rican people.

"The storm didn't break us," Sofia said. "It made us stronger."

"We Will Never Forget"

Hurricane Maria was a tragedy, but it also brought out the best in the Puerto Rican people.

"We will never forget the storm," said one survivor. "But we will also never forget the strength and resilience of our people."
